

Evacuee Support Concept of Operations Template

FEMA P-760a / Catalog No. 09049-2

July 2009

FEMA

Foreword

This template is designed to assist States and local jurisdictions in creating an Evacuee Support Concept of Operations that is scalable and sustainable to supplement the State Emergency Operations Plan. Its content and design provide a foundation that can be expanded upon using the Evacuee Support Planning Guide, other Federal guidance, and the wealth of information and expertise available in the emergency management community, to create an effective, hands-on State and/or local operational tool.

This document is designed to be used by States and/or jurisdictions as a ready-made base template; however, no State or jurisdiction is the same. Recognizing that each has its own requirements, this template provides generic text that States or jurisdictions can make distinctive to their own needs and communities by adding to and/or replacing the generic text with specific details. Alternatively, States or jurisdictions may elect to copy some of the text from specific sections for use in other documents.

The template follows this foreword, beginning with a sample cover page. For your State’s document, delete any pages up to that cover page.

There are several points of information to note:

- Generic text is found within blue brackets ([]). The generic text should be replaced with text specific to your State. For example, in Louisiana:
 - “ESF #8 Healthcare - [Primary Agency Name]” becomes “ESF #8 Healthcare - Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals (DHH)”.
- [State Name] in brackets refers to inserting the Host-State name, for example, in Georgia:
 - “[State Name]” becomes “Georgia.”
- If a local or tribal jurisdiction is using this template, [State Name] should be replaced with the appropriate local jurisdictional or tribal name, for example, in Tulsa County, Oklahoma:
 - “[State Name]” becomes “Tulsa County” or “Tulsa County, Oklahoma.”
- Where bracketed [] instructions suggest insertion of additional material, the choice is optional as to what and how much is included. For example, this could mean all State laws related to emergency management, a few, one, or none. The design allows for as much distinctive material as needed.

The Evacuee Support Concept of Operations is written from a State and local operational perspective, not a Federal one. The Evacuee Support Planning Guide, which works in partnership with this template, includes a comprehensive collection of references to Federal guidance, which can be used to augment State and local information. This Template is intended to work in conjunction with the Evacuee Support Planning Guide.

Introduction

Background

When a community experiences a disaster requiring sheltering and/or evacuation, those activities are generally sustainable within the local jurisdiction and/or with assistance from neighboring jurisdictions; however, a catastrophic or large-scale event could result in mass evacuation. Transportation-assisted evacuees as well as self-evacuees may need to evacuate to another State to find safe haven and assistance.

The widespread impact of hurricanes in 2005 and 2008 provided such an example. Response to the incidents overtaxed assistance capacity in the Impact-States, requiring out-of-State assistance.

As a result of the lessons learned from the 2005 hurricanes, States have expanded and adjusted their planning and operational responses to consider the unique needs of a catastrophic or large-scale event.

Overview

In a mass evacuation event in which an Impact-State is overtaxed and assistance is requested from other States for evacuee support, [State Name] may provide assistance to self-evacuees arriving in their personal vehicles and transportation-assisted evacuees arriving via bus, air, and/or rail. [State Name] coordinates with the Impact-State to facilitate the arrival and debarkation of evacuees; provide shelter, food, and medical care; support evacuees with household pets; provide financial assistance where applicable; and return evacuees to their home area or assist them in resettlement. In addition, the States work together to reunify families and ensure public safety. Coordination of these efforts is the responsibility of [State Primary Agency Name].

Purpose

Intended Use

This Evacuee Support Concept of Operations (ConOps) identifies evacuee support-specific Emergency Support Function (ESF) roles and responsibilities of government and Nongovernmental Organizations (NGO)¹. It also provides task lists and checklists for use in evacuee support operations.

The [State Name] Emergency Operations Plan (EOP) is the primary document for support of response and recovery when [State Name] is affected by a disaster or is requested by another State or the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to support a State affected by disaster.

¹ Nongovernmental organizations may also be referred to as “Private Non-Profit Organizations.” For detailed definitions of both these terms, refer to the Evacuee Support Planning Guide Glossary.

This ConOps supplements existing EOPs with a focus specific to supporting evacuees. It is an all-hazards document designed for use in both a “notice” event, such as a hurricane, and a “no-notice” event, such as an earthquake or hazardous materials release. It is most effective when used in conjunction with the Evacuee Support Planning Guide.

Audience

The intended audience for this ConOps includes [State Name] emergency management professionals; Emergency Operations Center (EOC) personnel; evacuee support-specific ESFs and ESF-assigned agencies; NGOs; private-sector agencies providing evacuee support; and any other ESFs, agencies, or organizations deemed appropriate.

Scope and Organization

Scope

This ConOps focuses on supporting evacuees from the time they arrive into [State Name] until they return to their home State, resettle in the Host-State, or relocate to another State. This document includes the following sections:

- Incident Management—operational focus directed to ESF #5 (Emergency Management)
 - Situation
 - Planning Assumptions
 - Implementation
 - Short-Term Process Flow Diagram
 - Intermediate and Long-Term Process Flow Diagram
 - Medical and Special Needs Planning Diagram
- Appendices—include specific ESF roles, responsibilities, and operational tasks and is directed to ESFs and agencies with primary or support responsibilities for evacuee support [other appendices may be added or these may be deleted, if necessary]

Organization

Each State ESF has an assigned agency which has primary responsibility for that function. Other agencies with support responsibilities are listed in Table 1. [Replace agency names with those appropriate to your State and add/remove departments and/or ESFs as necessary.]

Table 1 Legend: P = Primary, S = Support
Note: Some agencies share primary responsibility and will, thus, have multiple “P” entries.

Incident Management

Situation

In mass evacuations, transportation-assisted evacuees and self-evacuees may seek and/or require assistance from a State other than the Impact-State, which could include shelter, housing, feeding, medical support, financial, and/or other social services assistance. If [State Name]'s support is requested by an Impact-State or FEMA, [State Name] may receive and provide support to government transportation-assisted evacuees. Evacuees could arrive via various modes of transport, including air, ground, rail or their own means.

This ConOps may be implemented in whole or part depending on the scope of the event and evacuee support needs. Sheltering operations to support evacuees follow pre-established EOP protocols. The magnitude of an event determines the level of support needed, which may include the provision of evacuee assistance and support for an extended period of time or the permanent relocation of evacuees. [State Primary Agency Name] determines the availability of evacuee support operations in [State Name] based on coordination with, and resource requirements of, the Impact-State.

Throughout the ConOps, operational tasks are based on short-term, intermediate, and/or long-term evacuee support timelines. Because timeframes will change depending on the circumstances of each event, definitions for short-term, intermediate, and long-term are fluid and prone to change. For the purpose of this ConOps, the Federal timeline guidelines are:

- Short-Term—Days to weeks: response support prior to and immediately following the event
- Intermediate—Weeks up to six months: recovery, transitional shelter
- Long-Term—Months (more than six months) to years: recovery and resettlement, interim housing
 - Note: The length of time required for long-term evacuee support varies by circumstance, but, the Federal definition for reimbursement is up to 18 months in interim housing, including time spent in transitional sheltering.

The [State Name] timeline definitions are:

- Short-Term—[Insert definition]
- Intermediate—[Insert definition]
- Long-Term—[Insert definition]

A large-scale mass evacuation in the Impact-State and subsequent operations in [State Name] may result in Federal involvement and support. In a Federal mass evacuation operation, the [State Name] EOC coordinates with the FEMA Regional Response Coordination Center (RRCC) and Impact-State's Joint Field Office (JFO). The EOC may receive Federal-level coordination from the National Response Coordination Center (NRCC). Additional Federal support may be requested following a Presidential major disaster or emergency declaration for the Impact-State. This support may include shelter operations, security, emergency food services, logistical support, medical support, and social services. Support resources must be requested and approved through the Impact-State's JFO.

Assumptions

- Evacuee support may be needed for an extended period of time.
- Management of expectations is essential in order to keep evacuees and the general public aware of realistic goals and response capabilities.
- Public information and outreach will be necessary for both evacuees and host communities and may span the pre-event, response, and recovery phases.
- Evacuee support organizational structures and tasks may be incorporated into the [State Name] EOP command and control organizational structure.
- Media interest will escalate during the response and immediate recovery phases.
- Evacuees will include populations with disabilities and/or special needs, including persons who have limited English proficiency, who use service animals, who require durable medical equipment, and/or who have prescription medication requirements.
- Evacuees will include individuals subject to judicial and/or administrative orders restricting their freedom of movement, such as sex offenders and parolees.
- Some evacuees may require decontamination.
- Some evacuees may be unable to return to their homes for extended periods, if at all.
- Unaffiliated volunteers and unsolicited, unplanned donations will be offered and arrive rapidly and in large quantities.
- Families will become separated and need reunification; special considerations will be needed for unaccompanied minors.
- Some evacuees will have household pets that require shelter and/or care. Some evacuees may be resistant to being separated from their household pets.
- In a Federal disaster declaration, the Federal government supports the response and recovery operations.
- NGOs have been involved in the State evacuee support planning and are integrated into the response operational plans.

Implementation

[State Name]'s Governor or the Governor's Authorized Representative (GAR) [or if county/parish/tribal, change "Governor" to local equivalent] decides whether [State Name] accepts evacuees from another State and commits [State Name] resources to receive, shelter, and assist evacuees. [State Agency Name] coordinates evacuee support operations.

[Each State has its own laws, statutes, and authorities that impact emergency management and response (e.g., Home Rule, sexual offender laws). Insert appropriate State definitions, synopses, authority structures, laws, statutes, as needed.]

Those activating the ConOps may implement sections independently or simultaneously, depending on the incident and response, recovery requirements, and processes already in the EOP. Any or all of the following events may trigger the full or partial implementation:

- A Governor of an Impact-State requests assistance from [State Name] to host an evacuating population.
- FEMA requests that [State Name] host an evacuating population.
- A jurisdiction within [State Name] is requested to host an evacuating population from an impacted area.

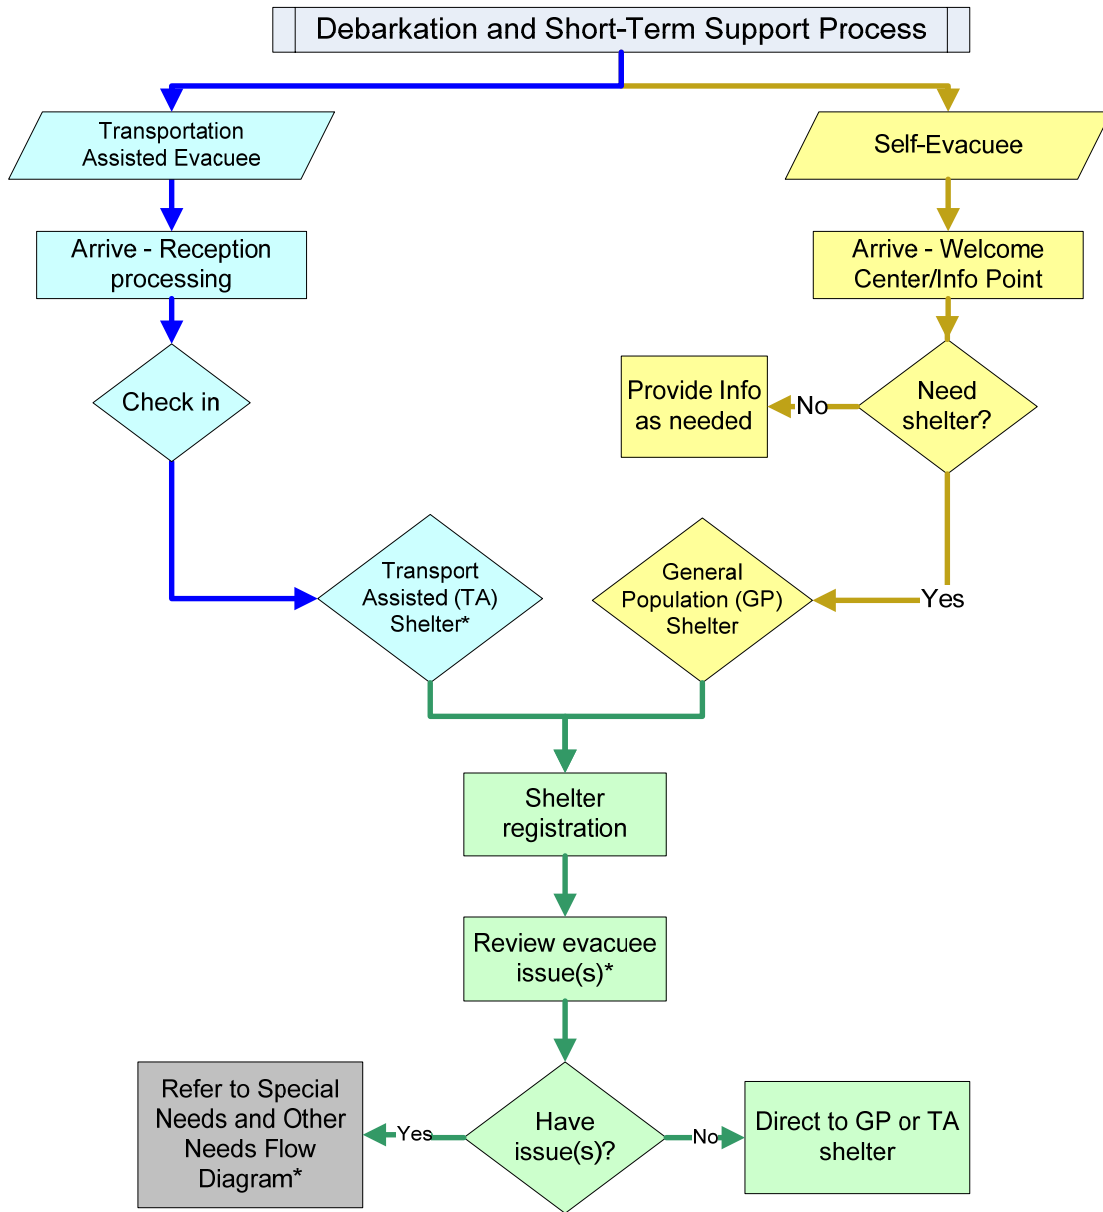

Impact-State officials or FEMA will notify [State Name] of a pending, imminent, or occurring evacuation that may result in:

- A large quantity of self-evacuees arriving in [State Name] seeking shelter and other support.
- The need to request Emergency Management Assistance Compact (EMAC) support to assist [State Name] in hosting transportation-assisted evacuees from the Impact-State.
- The need to implement or create Memoranda of Understanding/Memoranda of Agreement (MOU/MOA) with NGOs or contracts with the private sector for support to assist [State Name] in hosting government-organized transportation-assisted evacuees from the Impact-State.

The [State Emergency Management Agency Name], ESF #5, is responsible for overall State coordination of a response and recovery operation at the direction of the Governor. They activate the EOC and notify the responsible primary organizations and agencies that an event has taken place. Primary agencies notify support agencies/organizations, as needed.

The following flow diagrams outline the general processes for [State Name] evacuee support for each timeframe (i.e., short-term, intermediate, and long-term. [If there are State-specific points in the flow that do not match these diagrams, replace flow diagram with adjustments made.]

Flow Diagrams

Transportation-assisted evacuees and self-evacuees may reside in the same shelter or in separate shelters based on specific shelter requirements and services (e.g., background/security checks) and plan for opening facilities (reserved shelter space versus sequentially opened based on arrivals.) If separate shelters are used initially, they may be consolidated for an ongoing operation.

All transportation-assisted evacuees including those in the general population, medical needs, special functional needs, those with other issues will be received through the standard reception process before being directed to specific shelters or other accommodation, as needed.

* Figure 3 , page 9: Medical, Special, Functional, and Other Needs Flow Diagram.

*This should not be considered a comprehensive list of all possible medical, functional or other needs. It is intended as a general overview. State and local emergency management planning should include criteria and Standard Operating Procedures for each area. In an incident, trained and qualified medical, special needs, animal care, and/or security personnel should conduct assessments of the specific issue(s) and/or need and adjust the response and care accordingly.

 Medical, Special Needs, and Functional Needs may be supported by various types of healthcare institutions including hospitals, nursing homes, Medical Shelters, Medical Special Needs Shelters, Functional Needs Support Shelters and/or Federal Medical Stations. State, local, and Federal definition and criteria may vary. The type of shelter support should be designed based on the needs of evacuees with the name, definition, and admission criteria disseminated to the support community.

Primary Agency: [Agency Name]

Support Agencies: [Agency Names]

Roles and Responsibilities
