

Wonderful idea. With all of the different credit reporting agencies, formats and merges, the information can get very confusing for the average consumer. When there is an adverse action, consumers are told of the 3 main web sites and/or phone numbers to use, but it can be a very daunting task if you don't know what you are looking for.