ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This catalogue documents the Senate's entire collection of graphic art and builds on a 1995 volume by the Office of Senate Curator that illustrated all but the cartoon images then extant in the collection. Since then, more prints have been added to the collection, which now comprises almost one thousand images. A publication such as this could only be possible through the efforts of many individuals. First and foremost, thanks must go to the staff of the Office of Senate Curator. Jamie Arbolino led the project, overseeing the countless details with enthusiasm, humor, and commitment. He worked closely with everyone involved, from the writers to the designer and the printer. He and Theresa Malanum ensured the accuracy of the print data, reviewed each original print, confirmed the proper transcription of information, and conducted the requisite research to correct discrepancies and verify the completeness of each print record. Theresa also developed the extensive artist and sitter index. Amy Elizabeth Burton compiled the bibliography and was responsible for all photographic details, from the scanning of the images to the cropping and placement. Scott M. Strong contributed significantly to the writing, editing, and proofreading, and supervised the printing requirements and specifications. Clare Colgrove Hobson handled the administrative details, providing assistance in countless ways. Richard L. Doerner served as research assistant, fact checker, and proofreader, while Melinda K. Smith, Kelly Steele, and Deborah Wood assisted with review of the galley proofs. All of this work was accomplished in an extremely short time and with a full schedule of other commitments. The staff have my deepest gratitude—it has been a true team effort.

The catalogue was prepared under the direction of Emily J. Reynolds, secretary of the Senate and executive secretary to the Senate Commission on Art. The Office of Senate Curator is indeed indebted to her for her unfailing support, vision, and constant encouragement on this project and all the work undertaken by the office. She has been indefatigable in her leadership and enthusiasm. Assistant Secretary of the Senate Mary Suit Jones similarly provided sympathetic guidance along the way, understanding the time constraints on the office and the complexities of producing such a publication.

Dr. Donald A. Ritchie, associate historian in the U.S. Senate Historical Office, provided the incisive introductory essay to the cartoon chapter, as well as the illuminating short essays in that section. He has graciously assisted the Curator's Office on innumerable occasions and has always been generous with his time and knowledge. Senate Historian Dr. Richard A. Baker provided guidance and encouragement throughout the project; others in the Historical Office who aided the effort were Assistant Historian Dr. Betty K. Koed and Beth Hahn, historical editor.

Nancy Kervin, reference librarian in the Senate Library, contributed her considerable talent in copyediting several sections of the catalogue. She undertook this work over and above her many other responsibilities; we thank her for her expert and generous assistance, and also Senate Librarian Gregory C. Harness and Kimberly Ferguson, head of information services, for their patient understanding.

Other staff of the secretary of the Senate were invaluable, assisting with numerous details and administrative support. Cheri Allen, webmaster, and especially Arin Shapiro, assistant webmaster, worked closely with the Curator's Office to convert the Senate's database information into a publishable document. This proved a challenging task. Adam Bramwell, general counsel for the secretary, coordinated the publication with the Joint Committee on Printing; Zoraida Torres, accounts administrator, handled all financial matters; and Karen Moore, director of Printing and Document Services, helped with the printing specifications and other technical advice, while Kurt Stelter and Alfonso Roman provided additional assistance. All deserve special credit for their graciousness and support.

Several interns in the Curator's Office also provided much needed assistance, including Kristina Belich, Kimberly Robinson, and Caitlin Sweeney. Elizabeth Horrell deserves special thanks for her extensive help with the cartoon identification and the index, which she tackled with enthusiasm and commitment.

The preparation, design, and production of this catalogue would not have been possible without the talented staff of the Government Printing Office. GPO has created this magnificent companion volume to the 2002 publication, United States Senate Catalogue of Fine Art. Special thanks are due to Jerry Hammond and the Office of Congressional Publishing Services, particularly Gary Ford and Joe Benjamin for providing invaluable assistance with the day-to-day administrative details; to Deborah Roberts and Anthony Hooks in Agency Publishing Services, Customer Services, for ensuring that the printing specifications were followed; and to Chuck Jones and John McCleaf, Jr. in the Plant Operations Department, Postscript Service Section, who worked to specifications and schedule to scan all the images for pre-press. Janice Sterling and her staff in the Creative Services Division have my highest regard for their talent and dedication: Rebecca White designed this splendid publication and was enthusiastic and committed throughout the process, even during the most difficult moments; Rick Brzozowski, supervisor of Technical Review, provided expert advice with the printing specifications, while his staff spent countless hours overseeing the production. Sarah Trucksis deserves the highest commendation for all her work at the printers. Patrick Jacobs provided additional support as needed. Special thanks are due to Connie Linassi, associate director, Acquisition Policy and Planning Staff of Agency Publishing Services, who ensured the quality of the final bound books.

Colleagues from various institutions also must be thanked for their generous assistance and willingness to provide advice: William C. Allen, architectural historian for the Architect of the Capitol; Cecilia Wetheimer of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving; Katherine Blood, Sara W. Duke, George Laki, Mark Mattucci, Jim Schneider, and Mary Yarnall, of the Library of Congress; Helena E. Wright of the National Museum of American History, Smithsonian Institution; Wendy Wick Reaves and Amy Baskette of the National Portrait Gallery, Smithsonian Institution; and Richard Cote and Guy Munsch of the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

The Office of Senate Curator is proud to present this catalogue of the U.S. Senate's graphic art collection, which we hope will be a significant resource for those interested in the history of this institution. Curators, historians, and other scholars interested in further information on any of the prints should contact the Office of Senate Curator, Room S-411, U.S. Capitol, Washington, D.C. 20510. Telephone (202) 224-2955.
