The Administration is committed to disclosing information rapidly in forms that the Congress and public can readily find and use. This report is being made available to the public on the OMB website together with other legislative information and reports to Congress.

Enclosure

Section 1225 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007 (P.L. 109-364), as amended by Section 1243 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010 (P.L. 111-84) requires the Director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to submit to the Congress a report listing all assessed and voluntary contributions of the United States Government to the United Nations (UN) and UN affiliated agencies and related bodies. In previous years, OMB helped the State Department collect this data and the State Department issued the report.

The report reflects data collected from a government-wide data request issued by OMB. Each U.S. agency reported for all UN organizations under its purview. The report contains a listing of assistance provided during fiscal year 2010 by the U.S. Government-either directly or through another entity-to support the United Nations and its associated entities, including UN agencies, organizations, funds, or other bodies that fly the UN flag, use the UN logo, or are otherwise affiliated with the UN. The information provided includes both financial and in-kind support, including assessed contributions, voluntary contributions, grants, and other assistance provided to support UN programs and operations. For each U.S. Government department or agency, the report also provides specific information on each contribution: the responsible U.S. Government agency, the recipient UN entity, the amount obligated, a description of the contribution, whether the contribution was assessed or voluntary, and the purpose of the contribution.

Also based on the latest information provided by the State Department, it lists the approximate percentage of U.S. contributions to each UN entity compared with all the contributions to the entity in the relevant fiscal year. Some organizations were not able to report based on the U.S. fiscal year, as they operate on a calendar year basis; thus, in some cases this information is provided for the calendar year.

	World Health Organization (WHO)	Genetics of Tobacco and Alcohol Related Cancers	We have contributed to our understanding of the genetic epidemiology of lung cancer and upper aerodigestive tract (UADT) cancer by identification of several genes that are very strongly associated with them, including CHEK2 and ADH1B. We have also demonstrated how genetic variants interact strongly with dietary and environmental exposures for these cancers. We plan to build on our initial results and comprehensively evaluate the role of genes in 5 specific pathways for these cancers. We will conduct independent replication of findings in other large studies. Large genetic epidemiology studies have the potential to identify individuals at particularly high risk of developing cancer, as well as helping identify why these cancers develop. By incorporating multiple large studies of cancers related to tobacco and alcohol (specifically lung, and UADT cancer) we aim to provide knowledge that will inform future prevention efforts. The proposed study aims to measure trends in disability (understood as non-fatal health outcomes that capture a state less than full health) in aging cohorts in the World Health Organization (WHO)'s Study on Global Aging and Adult Health (SAGE) across the age range of older adults. It aims to do this by improving the measurement of non-fatal health outcomes, chronic diseases and risk factors in household survey settings and examine the links between non-fatal health outcomes, their determinants such as chronic disease and risk factors and future health outcomes including mortality. It also aims to examine the relationship between economic activity, quality of life, well-being and non-fatal health outcomes in aging populations in low and middle income countries.	Voluntary	200
