

Copyright Small claims:

Currently, small business owners or individuals who have valid copyrights to audio, written or video creations are unable to pursue claims unless they sue the violators in court and this can be expensive. A better system would be for small copyright holders to be allowed to arbitrate these claims against violators or set up an administrative system within the US Copyright Office where they can select arbitrators with experience in copyright law to arbitrate these cases.