SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Albert H. Huntington, Jr. (1913-2001) was a government official who was involved with the U.S. foreign aid program for over 30 years. He joined the staff of the Statistics and Reports Division of the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) in June 1948, and continued working for the successor agencies of the ECA, including the Technical Cooperation Administration (TCA), the Mutual Security Administration (MSA), the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA), the International Cooperation Administration (ICA) and the Agency for International Development (AID).

After his retirement in 1979, Huntington continued working part time at AID where he had access to the historical records of the agency. He began providing the Eisenhower Library with electrostatic copies of significant historical reports that documented the development of the foreign aid program. In a few cases, where multiple copies of published reports were available, Huntington donated original reports that had been declared surplus. Huntington also copied miscellaneous information on the foreign aid program, including abstracts of books and magazine articles by private individuals, and newspaper clippings.

This collection has been arranged into two series. The first series contains reports and publications originated by the ECA and its successor agencies. The reports are filed in chronological order. In many cases Huntington did not provide the Eisenhower Library with the complete report, but merely copied selected pages which he felt would be of particular interest to historians. At the end of the series are filed miscellaneous items, such as speeches by foreign aid officials, and statistics compiled from a variety of reports. In a few cases Huntington's transmittal letters were retained in the file as they contained significant comments on the origin of the reports and how they were used.

The second series contains reports and articles by other government agencies and private individuals that comment on the foreign aid program. The material is arranged by title or author, with miscellaneous articles and clippings filed at the end of the series.
