a. Activities/commanders will be provided initial stocks of DLI nonresident program materials upon approval of their request to establish a program or to modify an existing program. Requisitions for additional stocks will be submitted on DLI Form 877 to the Service/Agency Program Manager or his or her designee for validation and forwarding to Commandant, DLI.

b. Materials will be provided on a nonreimbursable basis up to the projected training support requirement for the fiscal year, previously established by the Service/Agency.

c. Where non-Government materials are recommended by DLI, the users will be responsible for procurement of those materials.

d. Materials requisitions in excess of the projected Service/ Agency requirement will be provided on a reimbursable basis.

e. Individual linguists, not associated with an approved program, will be provided materials when the requisition is authenticated by the individual's servicing personnel officer. Personnel officers will certify that the linguists service records indicate date of most current DLPT and skill levels attained in a given language.

3-5. Nonresident Foreign Language Program training report

a. Commanders conducting nonresident foreign language programs will submit a DD Form 2156 (Nonresident Foreign Language Program Training Report) through command channels to DLI with an information copy to Service/Agency Program Manager. The report will be forwarded annually, reflecting program data current as of 31 January, so as to arrive not later than 1 March.

b. If a nonresident foreign language program is discontinued, a final report will be filed with the Service/ Agency Program Manager or his or her designee who will notify DLI of the change in status.

3-6. Nonresident training evaluation

a. Periodic evaluation of ongoing nonresident foreign language program by the SPM or his or her designee is highly desirable to ensure quality control. The major elements of such evaluations include but are not limited to the following:

(1) Achieving course objectives.

(2) Appropriate and/or adequate course materials.

(3) Qualified instructors.

(4) Appropriate test, measurement, and scoring devices and their use.

(5) Proper maintenance of training records (to include DLPT scores and dates).

b. Reports of nonresident foreign language program evaluations by the SPMs may be submitted at any time directly to DLI for review and recommendations to correct any deficiencies. DLI will provide corrective recommendations within 30 days of receipt of such evaluations.

c. Should the complexity, size, or criticality of a particular nonresident foreign language program indicate a need for a joint evaluation of the program by the SPM and DLIFLC education specialists, SPMs should request support directly from DLI. The request need not be formatted in any special manner but should include the following:

(1) Name and location of NRFLP to be evaluated.

(2) Proposed dates of evaluation.

(3) Suspected problems areas, if any.

(4) Specific areas of interest (to ensure that the DLI specialist accompanying the SPM have the proper expertise in that area.)

(5) Name of languages being taught in the non-resident foreign language program.

(6) Fund cite data. (If an MTT has not been projected for this purpose.)

Chapter 4 DFLP Evaluation

4-1. DFLP objectives

The objectives of the DFLP evaluation program are to establish quality control standards and criteria for the following:

- a. Screening foreign language training applicants for language aptitude.
- b. Identifying the foreign language training start-point for those students with prior foreign language knowledge.
- c. Determining a student's foreign language proficiency by skill level listening, speaking and reading.
- d. Verifying foreign language qualification of US personnel.
- e. Use in research and development supporting the DFLP.
- f. Evaluating the effectiveness of training programs and provision of information necessary for policy or managerial decisions relating to DFLP.
- g. Establishing skill level proficiency descriptions that are common across all languages.

4-2. DFLP standards

a. Screening. DLI establishes or approves standards or criteria for language training and provides various tests and evaluation procedures. The Defense Language Aptitude Battery (DLAB) is designed to predict an individual's ability to learn foreign languages. The DLAB replaced the Defense Language Aptitude Test (DLAT) 1 and 2 as the standard aptitude test in April 1977. A hearing test is also used. These tests are used by the services to aid in selection of personnel for language training. Recommended minimum aptitude scores for entry into training are established by the DLI. AR 611-6, CNETINST 1550.9-series, AFR 35-8, and MCO P1000.6 contain information on the administering, scoring, and established entry level standards.

b. Verification of proficiency. The Defense Language Proficiency Test (DLPT) is a standardized, objective test designed to measure an individual's general ability to comprehend the spoken and written foreign language, and to speak the language regardless of the source of that ability. Tests of the DLPT-series are available through controlled Senice publication channels to test control officers only and may be administered at the local command level. DA Pam 611-6, CNETINST 1550.Wseries, AFR 35-8, MCO P1000.6, and the DLPT Administration Manuals contain information on the administration and scoring of DLPTs and on language training standards.

c. Skill levels. Skill level descriptions for levels 0 through 5 in each of the four major functional skills (Speaking, Listening Comprehension, Reading Comprehension, and Writing) are contained in appendix G. These U.S. Government proficiency standards describe general language proficiency. Service/Agency Program Managers with specialized requirements may need to define additional job-related requirements in conjunction with minimum proficiency standards. These job-related requirements should be coordinated with DLI before being established as language training requirements.

d. Language comprehension at skill levels 3+ and above. Scores attained on a DLPT I or II do not measure listening and reading comprehension above skill level 3. In addition, lower range DLPT IIIs do not measure speaking, listening, and reading comprehension above skill level 3. To be eligible to take a test that measures above level 3 at the present time, an individual must first attain a level 3 on all skills measured by the DLPT I, II, or the lower range DLPT III. The TCO who tested the individual can then contact the TCO at DLI, Presidio of Monterey, to arrange for upper range testing by telephone. Telephone testing can be used to test only speaking and listening comprehension. (In the future, upper range DLPT III tests will be developed to measure speaking, listening and reading comprehension at levels 3+ and above.)

4-3. DFLP training evaluation

- a. Resident training evaluation is a continuous process.
 - (1) Initial training evaluation examines the quality of training provided in terms of student achievement of specified training objectives. Analysis is based on data derived from tests, questionnaires, studies, and audits.

(2) Graduate evaluation examines the ability of students to perform language-dependent duties in the assignment for which they were trained. The process includes analysis of data derived from three reports.

(a) The Graduate Field Survey, sent to DLI graduates in field assignments, requests information from graduates and their supervisors regarding course materials and instructional methods, and the ability of graduates to perform language-related job tasks. Surveys are conducted by DLI who will obtain graduates' current official addresses from the Services. A summary of significant findings will be forwarded to HQDA (DAMOTR), WASH DC 20310-0450.

(b) The Graduate Evaluation Report is submitted through channels quarterly by the 3480 Technical Training Group, Goodfellow AFB, TX (ATC). The report indicates the degree to which DLIFLC graduates have satisfied the specified foreign language skills required for the technical training conducted at Good-fellow.

(c) Substandard/unsatisfactory letter reports are submitted through channels to the SPM and the Executive Agent to DLI by field commanders whenever the performance of DLI graduates indicated that some aspect of DLI training may be substandard or unsatisfactory. The report should describe the nature of the deficiency in sufficient detail to allow DLI to determine the corrective action required.

b. Nonresident training evaluation. Nonresident training evaluation is performed under the auspices of the Service/Agency Program Manager or his or her designee who will report results to the DLI. Additionally, DLI will periodically conduct, in coordination with the Service/Agency Program Manager or his or her designee, onsite evaluations to ensure quality control.

DEFINITIONS

1. Executive Agent Training. Institutional training conducted under the authority assigned to the executive agent that is designed to satisfy specific skill requirements common to two or more DoD Components.
2. General Intelligence. The product resulting from the collection, evaluation, analysis, integration, interpretation, and management of information concerning one or more aspects of foreign countries or areas that is immediately or potentially significant to the development and execution of plans, policies, and operations and that is excluded from the purview of cryptology and signals intelligence.

Mobile Training Teams (MTT) and Language Training Detachments (LTD)

E-1. Mobile Training Teams (MTTs)

Deployable teams, made up of one or more subject matter experts (SMEs) from the faculty and staff of DLIFLC, can be constituted for temporary duty assignment to meet specific requirements of an ESO or unit commander. The overall mission of a MTT is to provide guidance, assistance, and training in the establishment, operation, and evaluation of nonresident language program when it is considered more expeditious, practical and economical to bring that assistance to the field. Specifically, MTTs may be tasked to provide-

1. Assistance to commanders in surveying and assessing training support requirements (TSR), and training development requirements (TDR).
2. Job/task analysis and/or evaluation studies as required.
3. Instructor/staff training.
4. On-site language training. Such training should be an exceptional mission of a MTT and will be undertaken only to meet urgent requirements for which normal nonresident instruction materials are unsuitable or resident training is unfeasible. All such requests must be processed through the SPM prior to submission to DLIFLC.
5. On-site assistance for establishment of NRLPs.
6. On-site evaluation of NRLPs.
7. On-site course development.
8. Field testing/trials of new course materials.
9. Other services as required/authorized.

E-2. A Language Training Detachment (LTD)

An LTD may consist of one or more subject matter experts from the faculty and staff of DLIFLC who are especially trained to advise and support CONUS or OCONUS major area commanders or commanders of CONUS or OCONUS major DOD installations in all matters relating to nonresident language programs. An LTD is assigned to the field on permanent change of station (PCS) orders without permanent change of assignment (PCA) orders for a tour of duty as limited by the JTR. The members of the LTD are under the operational control of the commander requesting the LTD and maintain technical liaison directly with DLIFLC, as appropriate. The overall mission of a LTD is to provide operational stability and continuity in the establishment, management, and overall operation of large NRLPs. Specifically, LTDs may be constituted and tasked to provide:

1. Temporary language training coordinators at unified command headquarters, major overseas commands, major NATO headquarters, and major subordinate commands as authorized.
2. Job/task analysts.
3. Course development project officer(s) or specialists.

Appendix F DLIFLC Language Skill Level Descriptions

Section INTERAGENCY LANGUAGE ROUNDTABLE LANGUAGE SKILL LEVEL DESCRIPTIONS SPEAKING

Preface

The following proficiency level descriptions characterize spoken language use. Each of the six "base levels" (coded 00, 10, 20, 30, 40, and 50) implies control of any previous "base level's" functions and accuracy. The "plus level" designation (coded 06, 16, 26, etc.) will be assigned when proficiency substantially exceeds one base skill level and does not fully meet the criteria for the next "base level." The "plus level" descriptions are therefore supplementary to the "base level" descriptions.

A skill level is assigned to a person through an authorized language examination. Examiners assign a level on a variety of performance criteria exemplified in the descriptive statements. Therefore, the examples given here illustrate, but do not exhaustively describe, either the skills a person may possess or situations in which he/she may function effectively.

Statements describing accuracy refer to typical stages in the development of competence in the most commonly taught languages in formal training programs. In other languages, emerging competence parallels these characterizations, but often with different details.

Unless otherwise specified, the term "native speaker" refers to native speakers of a standard dialect.

"Well-educated," in the context of these proficiency descriptions, does not necessarily imply formal higher education. However, in cultures where formal higher education is common, the language-use abilities of persons who have had such education is considered the standard. That is, such a person meets contemporary expectations for the formal, careful style of the language, as well as a range of less formal varieties of the language.

Speaking 0 (No Proficiency)

Unable to function in the spoken language. Oral production is limited to occasional isolated words. Has essentially no communicative ability. (Has been coded S-0 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 00]

Speaking 0+ (Memorized Proficiency)

Able to satisfy immediate needs using rehearsed utterances. Shows little real autonomy of expression, flexibility, or spontaneity. Can ask questions or make statements with reasonable accuracy only with memorized utterances or formulae. Attempts at creating speech are usually unsuccessful.

Examples: The individual's vocabulary is usually limited to areas of immediate survival needs. Most utterances are telegraphic; that is, functors (linking words, markers, and the like) are omitted, confused, or distorted. An individual can usually differentiate most significant sounds when produced in isolation, but, when combined in words or groups of words, errors may be frequent. Even with repetition, communication is severely limited even with people used to dealing with foreigners. Stress, intonation, tone, etc. are usually quite faulty. (Has been coded S-0+ in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 06]

Speaking 1 (Elementary Proficiency)

Able to satisfy minimum courtesy requirements and maintain very simple face-to-face conversations on familiar topics. A native speaker must often use slowed speech, repetition, paraphrase, or a combination of these to be understood by this individual. Similarly, the native speaker must strain and employ real-world knowledge to understand even simple statements/questions from this individual. This speaker has a functional, but limited proficiency. Misunderstandings are frequent, but the individual is able to ask for help and to verify comprehension of native speech in face-to-face interaction. The individual is unable to produce continuous discourse except with rehearsed material.

Examples: Structural accuracy is likely to be random or severely limited. Time concepts are vague. Vocabulary is inaccurate, and its range is very narrow. The individual often speaks with great difficulty. By repeating, such speakers can make themselves understood to native speakers who are in regular contact with foreigners but there is little precision in the information conveyed. Needs, experience, or training may vary greatly from individual to individual; for example, speakers at this level may have encountered quite different vocabulary areas. However, the individual can typically satisfy predictable, simple, personal and accommodation needs; can generally meet courtesy, introduction, and identification requirements; exchange greetings; elicit and provide, for example, predictable and skeletal biographical information. He/she might give information about business hours, explain routine procedures in a limited way, and state in a simple manner what actions will be taken. He/she is able to formulate some questions even in languages with complicated question constructions. Almost every utterance may be characterized by structural errors and errors in basic grammatical relations. Vocabulary is extremely limited and characteristically does not include modifiers. Pronunciation, stress, and intonation are generally poor, often heavily influenced by another language. Use of structure and vocabulary is highly imprecise. (Has been coded S-1 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 10]

Speaking 1+ (Elementary Proficiency, Plus)

Can initiate and maintain predictable face-to-face conversations and satisfy limited social demands. He/she may, however, have little understanding of the social conventions of conversation. The interlocutor is generally required to strain and employ real-world knowledge to understand even some simple speech. The speaker at this level may hesitate and may have to change subjects due to lack of language resources. Range and control of the language are limited. Speech largely consists of a series of short, discrete utterances.

Examples: The individual is able to satisfy most travel and accommodation needs and a limited range of social demands beyond exchange of skeletal biographic information. Speaking ability may extend beyond immediate survival needs. Accuracy in basic grammatical relations is evident, although not consistent. May exhibit the more common forms of verb tenses, for example, but may make frequent errors in formation and selection. While some structures are established, errors occur in more complex patterns. The individual typically cannot sustain coherent structures in longer utterances or unfamiliar situations. Ability to describe and give precise information is limited. Person, space, and time references are often used incorrectly. Pronunciation is understandable to natives used to dealing with foreigners. Can combine most significant sounds with reasonable comprehensibility, but has difficulty in producing certain sounds in certain positions or in certain combinations. Speech will usually be labored. Frequently has to repeat utterances to be understood by the general public. (Has been coded S-1 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 16]

Speaking 2 (Limited Working Proficiency)

Able to satisfy routine social demands and limited work requirements. Can handle routine work-related interactions that are limited in scope. In more complex and sophisticated work-related tasks, language usage generally disturbs the native speaker. Can handle with confidence, but not with facility, most normal, high-frequency social conversational situations including extensive, but casual conversations about current events, as well as work, family, and autobiographical information. The individual can get the gist of most everyday conversations but has some difficulty understanding native speakers in situations that require specialized or sophisticated knowledge. The individual's utterances are minimally cohesive. Linguistic structure is usually not very elaborate and not thoroughly controlled; errors are frequent. Vocabulary use is appropriate for high-frequency utterances, but unusual or imprecise elsewhere.

Examples: While these interactions will vary widely from individual to individual, the individual can typically ask and answer predictable questions in the workplace and give straightforward instructions to subordinates. Additionally, the individual can participate in personal and accommodation-type interactions with elaboration and facility; that is, can give and understand complicated, detailed, and extensive directions and make non-routine changes in travel and accommodation arrangements. Simple structures and basic grammatical relations are typically controlled; however, there are areas of weakness. In the commonly taught languages, these may be simple markings such as plurals, articles, linking words, and negatives or more complex structures such as tense/aspect usage, case morphology, passive constructions, word order, and embedding. (Has been coded S-2 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 20]

Speaking 2+ (Limited Working Proficiency, Plus)

Able to satisfy most work requirements with language usage that is often, but not always, acceptable and effective. The individual shows considerable ability to communicate effectively on topics relating to particular interests and special fields of competence. Often shows a high degree of fluency and ease of speech, yet when under tension or pressure, the ability to use the language effectively may deteriorate. Comprehension of normal native speech is typically nearly complete. The individual may miss cultural and local references and may require a native speaker to adjust to his/her limitations in some ways. Native speakers often perceive the individual's speech to contain awkward or inaccurate phrasing of ideas, mistaken time, space, and person references, or to be in some way inappropriate, if not strictly incorrect.

Examples: Typically the individual can participate in most social, formal, and informal interactions; but limitations either in range of contexts, types of tasks, or level of accuracy hinder effectiveness. The individual may be ill at ease with the use of the language either in social interaction or in speaking at length in professional contexts. He/she is generally strong in either structural precision or vocabulary, but not in both. Weakness or unevenness in one of the foregoing, or in pronunciation, occasionally results in miscommunication. Normally controls, but cannot always easily produce general vocabulary. Discourse is often incohesive. (Has been coded S-2+ in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 26]

Speaking 3 (General Professional Proficiency)

Able to speak the language with sufficient structural accuracy and vocabulary to participate effectively in most formal and informal conversations on practical, social, and professional topics. Nevertheless, the individual's limitations generally restrict the professional contexts of language use to matters of shared knowledge and/or international convention. Discourse is cohesive. The individual uses the language acceptably, but with some noticeable imperfections; yet, errors virtually never interfere with understanding and rarely disturb the native speaker. The individual can effectively combine structure and vocabulary to convey his/her meaning accurately. The individual speaks readily and fills pauses suitably. In face-to-face conversation with natives speaking the standard dialect at a normal rate of speech, comprehension is quite complete. Although cultural references, proverbs, and the implications of nuances and idiom may not be fully understood, the individual can easily repair the conversation. Pronunciation may be obviously foreign. Individual sounds are accurate; but stress, intonation, and pitch control may be faulty.

Examples: Can typically discuss particular interests and special fields of competence with reasonable ease. can use the language as part of normal professional duties such as answering objections, clarifying points, justifying decisions, understanding the essence of challenges, stating and defending policy, conducting meetings, delivering briefings, or other extended and elaborate informative monologues. Can reliably elicit information and informed opinion from native speakers. Structural inaccuracy is rarely the major cause of misunderstanding. Use of structural devices is flexible and elaborate. Without searching for words or phrases, the individual uses the language clearly and relatively naturally to elaborate concepts freely and make ideas easily understandable to native speakers. Errors occur in low-frequency and highly complex structures. (Has been coded S-3 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 30]

Speaking 3+ (General Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Is often able to use the language to satisfy professional needs in a wide range of sophisticated and demanding tasks.

Examples: Despite obvious strengths, may exhibit some hesitancy, uncertainty, effort, or errors which limit the range of language-use tasks that can be reliably performed. Typically there is particular strength in fluency and one or more, but not all, of the following: breadth of lexicon, including low- and medium-frequency items, especially sociolinguistic/cultural references and nuances of close synonyms; structural precision, with sophisticated features that are readily, accurately, and appropriately controlled (such as complex modification and embedding in Indo-European languages); discourse competence in a wide range of contexts and tasks, often matching a native speaker's strategic and organizational abilities and expectations. Occasional patterned errors occur in low frequency and highly-complex structures. (Has been coded S-3+ in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 36]

Speaking 4 (Advanced Professional Proficiency)

Able to use the language fluently and accurately on all levels normally pertinent to professional needs. The individual's language usage and ability to function are fully successful. Organizes discourse well, using appropriate rhetorical speech devices, native cultural references, and understanding. Language ability only rarely hinders him/her in performing any task requiring language; yet, the individual would seldom be perceived as a native. Speaks effortlessly and smoothly and is able to use the language with a high degree of effectiveness, reliability, and precision for all representational purposes within the range of personal and professional experience and scope of responsibilities. Can serve as an informal interpreter in a range of unpredictable circumstances. Can perform extensive, sophisticated language tasks, encompassing most matters of interest to well-educated native speakers, including tasks which do not bear directly on a professional specialty.

Examples: Can discuss in detail concepts which are fundamentally different from those of the target culture and make those concepts clear and accessible to the native speaker. Similarly, the individual can understand the details and ramifications of concepts that are culturally or conceptually different from his/her own can set the tone of interpersonal official, semi-official, and non-professional verbal exchanges with a representative range of native speakers (in a range of varied audiences, purposes, tasks, and settings). Can play an effective role among native speakers in such contexts as conferences, lectures, and debates on matters of disagreement. Can advocate a position at length, both formally and in chance encounters, using sophisticated verbal strategies. Understands and reliably produces shifts of both subject matter and tone. Can understand native speakers of the standard and other major dialects in essentially any face-to-face interaction. (Has been coded S-4 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 40]

Speaking 4+ (Advanced Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Speaking proficiency is regularly superior in all respects, usually equivalent to that of a well-educated, highly articulate native speaker. Language ability does not impede the performance of any language-use task. However, the individual would not necessarily be perceived as culturally native.

Examples: The individual organizes discourse well, employing functional rhetorical speech devices, native cultural references and understanding. Effectively applies a native speaker's social and circumstantial knowledge. However, cannot sustain that performance under all circumstances. While the individual has a wide range and control of structure, an occasional non-native slip may occur. The individual has a sophisticated control of vocabulary and phrasing that is rarely imprecise, yet there are occasional weaknesses in idioms, colloquialisms, pronunciation, cultural reference or there may be an occasional failure to interact in a totally native manner. (Has been coded S-4+ in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 46]

Speaking 5 (Functionally Native Proficiency)

Speaking proficiency is functionally equivalent to that of a highly articulate well-educated native speaker and reflects the cultural standards of the country where the language is natively spoken. The individual uses the language with complete flexibility and intuition, so that speech on all levels is fully accepted by well-educated native speakers in all of its features, including breadth of vocabulary and idiom, colloquialisms, and pertinent cultural references. Pronunciation is typically consistent with that of well-educated native speakers of a non-stigmatized dialect. (Has been coded S-5 in some nonautomated applications.)[Data Code 50]

INTERAGENCY LANGUAGE ROUNDTABLE LANGUAGE SKILL LEVEL DESCRIPTIONS LISTENING

Preface

The following proficiency level descriptions characterize comprehension of the spoken language. Each of the six 'base levels' (coded 00, 10, 20, 30, 40, and 50) implies control of any previous 'base level's' functions and accuracy. The 'plus level' designation (coded 06, 16, 26, etc.) will be assigned when proficiency substantially exceeds one base skill level and does not fully meet the criteria for the next 'base level.' The 'plus level' descriptions are therefore supplementary to the 'base level' descriptions. A skill level is assigned to a person through an authorized language examination. Examiners assign a level on a variety of performance criteria exemplified in the descriptive statements. Therefore, the examples given here illustrate, but do not exhaustively describe, either the skills a person may possess or situations in which he/she may function effectively.

Statements describing accuracy refer to typical stages in the development of competence in the most commonly taught languages in formal training programs. In other languages, emerging competence parallels these characterizations, but often with different details.

Unless otherwise specified, the term 'native listener' refers to native speakers and listeners of a standard dialect.

'Well-educated,' in the context of these proficiency descriptions, does not necessarily imply formal higher education. However, in cultures where formal higher education is common, the language-use abilities of persons who have had such education is considered the standard. That is, such a person meets contemporary expectations for the formal, careful style of the language, as well as a range of less formal varieties of the language.

Listening 0 (No Proficiency)

No practical understanding of the spoken language. Understanding is limited to occasional isolated words with essentially no ability to comprehend communication. (Has been coded L-0 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 00]

Listening 0+ (Memorized Proficiency)

Sufficient comprehension to understand a number of memorized utterances in areas of immediate needs. Slight increase in utterance length understood but requires frequent long pauses between understood phrases and repeated requests on the listener's part for repetition. Understands with reasonable accuracy only when this involves short memorized utterances or formulae. Utterances understood are relatively short in length. Misunderstandings arise due to ignoring or inaccurately hearing sounds or word endings (both inflectional and non-inflectional), distorting the original meaning. Can understand only with difficulty even such people as teachers who are used to speaking with non-native speakers. Can understand best those statements where context strongly supports the utterance's meaning. Gets some main ideas. (Has been coded L-0+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 06]

Listening 1 (Elementary Proficiency)

Sufficient comprehension to understand utterances about basic survival needs and minimum courtesy and travel requirements. In areas of immediate need or on very familiar topics, can understand simple questions and answers, simple statements and very simple face-to-face conversations in a standard dialect. These most often be delivered more clearly than normal at a rate slower than normal, with frequent repetitions or paraphrase (that is, by a native used to dealing with foreigners). Once learned, these sentences can be varied for similar level vocabulary and grammar and still be understood. In the majority of utterances, misunderstandings arise due to overlooked or misunderstood syntax and other grammatical clues. Comprehension vocabulary inadequate to understand anything but the most elementary needs. Strong interference from the candidate's native language occurs. Little precision in the information understood owing to the tentative state of passive grammar and lack of vocabulary. Comprehension areas include basic needs such as: meals, lodging, transportation, time and simple directions (including both route instructions and orders from customs officials, policemen, etc.). Understands main ideas. (Has been coded L-1 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 10]

Listening 1+ (Elementary Proficiency, Plus)

Sufficient comprehension to understand short conversations about all survival needs and limited social demands. Developing flexibility evident in understanding into a range of circumstances beyond immediate survival needs. Shows spontaneity in understanding by speed, although consistency of understanding uneven. Limited vocabulary range necessitates repetition for understanding. Understands more common time forms and most question forms, some word order patterns but miscommunication still occurs with more complex patterns. Cannot sustain understanding of coherent structures in longer utterances or in unfamiliar situations. Understanding of descriptions and the giving of precise information is limited. Aware of basic cohesive features, e.g., pronouns, verb inflections, but many are unreliably understood, especially if less immediate in reference. Understanding is largely limited to a series of short, discrete utterances. Still has to ask for utterances to be repeated. Some ability to understand facts. (Has been coded L-1+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 16]

Listening 2 (Limited Working Proficiency)

Sufficient comprehension to understand conversations on routine social demands and limited job requirements. Able to understand face-to-face speech in a standard dialect, delivered at a normal rate with some repetition and rewording, by a native speaker not used to dealing with foreigners, about everyday topics, common personal and family news, well-known current events, and routine office matters through descriptions and narration about current, past and future events; can follow essential points of discussion or speech at an elementary level on topics in his/her special professional field. Only understands occasional words and phrases of statements made in unfavorable conditions, for example through loudspeakers outdoors. Understands factual content. Native language causes less interference in listening comprehension. Able to understand facts, i.e., the lines but not between or beyond the lines. (Has been coded L-2 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 20]

Listening 2+ (Limited Working Proficiency, Plus)

Sufficient comprehension to understand most routine social demands and most conversations on work requirements as well as some discussions on concrete topics related to particular interests and special fields of competence. Often shows remarkable ability and ease of understanding, but under tension or pressure may break down. Candidate may display weakness or deficiency due to inadequate vocabulary base or less than secure knowledge of grammar and syntax. Normally understands general vocabulary with some hesitant understanding of everyday vocabulary still evident. Can sometimes detect emotional overtones. Some ability to understand implications. (Has been coded L-2+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 26]

Listening 3 (General Professional Proficiency)

Able to understand the essentials of all speech in a standard dialect including technical discussions within a special field. Has effective understanding of face-to-face speech, delivered with normal clarity and speed in a standard dialect, on general topics and areas of special interest; understands hypothesizing and supported opinions. Has broad enough vocabulary that rarely has to ask for paraphrasing or explanation. Can follow accurately the essentials of conversations between educated native speakers, reasonably clear telephone calls, radio broadcasts, news stories similar to wire service reports, oral reports, some oral technical reports and public addresses on non-technical subjects; can understand without difficulty all forms of standard speech concerning a special professional field. Does not understand native speakers if they speak very quickly or use some slang or dialect. Can often detect emotional overtones. Can understand implications. (Has been coded L-3 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 30]

Listening 3+ (General Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Comprehends most of the content and intent of a variety of forms and styles of speech pertinent to professional needs, as well as general topics and social conversation. Ability to comprehend many sociolinguistic and cultural references. However, may miss some subtleties and nuances. Increased ability to comprehend unusually complex structures in lengthy utterances and to comprehend many distinctions in language tailored for different audiences. Increased ability to understand native speakers talking quickly, using nonstandard dialect or slang; however, comprehension not complete. Can discern some relationships among sophisticated listening materials in the context of broad experience. Can follow some unpredictable turns of thought readily in, for example, informal and formal speeches covering editorial, conjectural and literary material in subject matter areas directed to the general listener. (Has been coded L-3+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 36]

Listening 4 (Advanced Professional Proficiency)

Able to understand all forms and styles of speech pertinent to professional needs. Able to understand fully all speech with extensive and precise vocabulary, subtleties and nuances in all standard dialects on any subject relevant to professional needs within the range of his/her experience, including social conversations; all intelligible broadcasts and telephone calls; and many kinds of technical discussions and discourse. Understands language specifically tailored (including persuasion, representation, counseling, and negotiating) to different audiences. Able to understand the essentials of speech in some non-standard dialects. Has difficulty in understanding extreme dialect and slang, also in understanding speech in unfavorable conditions, for example through bad loudspeakers outdoors. Can discern relationships among sophisticated listening materials in the context of broad experience. Can follow unpredictable turns of thought readily- in, for example, informal and formal speeches covering editorial, conjectural, and literary material in any subject matter directed to the general listener. (Has been coded L-4 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 40]

Listening 4+ (Advanced Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Increased ability to understand extremely difficult and abstract speech as well as ability to understand all forms and styles of speech pertinent to professional needs, including social conversations. Increased ability to comprehend native speakers using extreme nonstandard dialects and slang, as well as to understand speech in unfavorable conditions. Strong sensitivity to sociolinguistic and cultural references. Accuracy is close to that of the well-educated native listener but still not equivalent. (Has been coded L-4+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 46]

Listening 5 (Functionally Native Proficiency)

Comprehension equivalent to that of the well-educated native listener. Able to understand fully all forms and styles of speech intelligible to the well-educated native listener, including a number of regional and illiterate dialects, highly colloquial speech and conversations and discourse distorted by marked interference from other noise. Able to understand how natives think as they create discourse. Able to understand extremely difficult and abstract speech. (Has been coded L-5 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 50]

A skill level is assigned to a person through an authorized language examination. Examiners assign a level on a variety of performance criteria exemplified in the descriptive statements. Therefore, the examples given here illustrate, but do not exhaustively describe, either the skills a person may possess or situations in which he, she may function effectively.

Statements describing accuracy refer to typical stages in the development of competence in the most commonly taught languages in formal training programs. In other languages, emerging competence parallels these characterizations, but often with different details.

Unless otherwise specified, the term 'native reader' refers to native readers of a standard dialect.

'Well-educated,' in the context of these proficiency descriptions, does not necessarily imply formal higher education. However, in cultures where formal higher education is common, the language-use abilities of persons who have had such education is considered the standard. That is, such a person meets contemporary expectations for the formal, careful style of the language, as well as a range of less formal varieties of the language.

In the following descriptions a standard set of text-types is associated with each level. The text-type is generally characterized in each descriptive statement.

The word 'read,' in the context of these proficiency descriptions, means that the person at a given skill level can thoroughly understand the communicative intent in the text-types described. In the usual case the reader could be expected to make a full representation, thorough summary, or translation of the text into English.

Other useful operations can be performed on written texts that do not require the ability to 'read,' as defined above. Examples of such tasks which people of a given skill level may reasonably be expected to perform are provided, when appropriate, in the descriptions.

Reading 0 (No Proficiency)

No practical ability to read the language. Consistently misunderstands or cannot comprehend at all. (Has been coded R-0 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 00]

Reading 0+ (Memorized Proficiency)

Can recognize all the letters in the printed version of an alphabetic system and high-frequency elements of a syllabary or a character system. Able to read some or all of the following: numbers, isolated words and phrases, personal and place names, street signs, office and shop designations; the above often interpreted inaccurately. Unable to read connected prose. (Has been coded R-0+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 06]

Reading 1 (Elementary Proficiency)

Sufficient comprehension to read very simple connected written material in a form equivalent to usual printing or typescript. Can read either representations of familiar formulaic verbal exchanges or simple language containing only the highest frequency structural patterns and vocabulary, including shared international vocabulary items and cognates (when appropriate). Able to read and understand known language elements that have been recombined in new ways to achieve different meanings at a similar level of simplicity. Texts may include simple narratives of routine behavior; highly predictable descriptions of people, places or things; and explanations of geography and government such as those simplified for tourists. Some misunderstandings possible on simple texts. Can get some main ideas and locate prominent items of professional significance in more complex texts. Can identify general subject matter in some authentic texts. (Has been coded R-1 in some non-automated applications.) [Data Code 10]

Reading 1+ (Elementary Proficiency, Plus)

Sufficient comprehension to understand simple discourse in printed form for informative social purposes. Can read material such as announcements of public events, simple prose containing biographical information or narration of events, and straightforward newspaper headlines. Can guess at unfamiliar vocabulary if highly contextualized, but with difficulty in unfamiliar contexts. Can get some main ideas and locate routine information of professional significance in more complex texts. Can follow essential points of written discussion at an elementary level on topics in his/her special professional field.

In commonly taught languages, the individual may not control the structure well. For example, basic grammatical relations are often misinterpreted, and temporal reference may rely primarily on lexical items as time indicators. Has some difficulty with the cohesive factors in discourse, such as matching pronouns with referents. May have to read materials several times for understanding. (Has been coded R-1+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 16]

Reading 2 (Limited Working Proficiency)

Sufficient comprehension to read simple, authentic written material in a form equivalent to usual printing or typescript on subjects within a familiar context. Able to read with some misunderstandings straightforward, familiar, factual material, but in general insufficiently experienced with the language to draw inferences directly from the linguistic aspects of the text. Can locate and understand the main ideas and details in material written for the general reader. However, persons who have professional knowledge of a subject may be able to summarize or perform sorting and locating tasks with written texts that are well beyond their general proficiency level. The individual can read uncomplicated, but authentic prose on familiar subjects that are normally presented in a predictable sequence which aids the reader in understanding. Texts may include descriptions and narrations in contexts such as news items describing frequently occurring events, simple biographical information, social notices, formulaic business letters, and simple technical material written for the general reader. Generally the prose that can be read by the individual is predominantly in straightforward/high-frequency sentence patterns. The individual, does not have a broad active vocabulary (that is, which he/she recognizes immediately on sight), but is able to use contextual and real-world cues to understand the text. Characteristically, however, the individual is quite slow in performing such a process. He/she is typically able to answer factual questions about authentic texts of the types described above. (Has been coded R-2 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 20]

Reading 2+ (Limited Working Proficiency, Plus)

Sufficient comprehension to understand most factual material in non-technical prose as well as some discussions on concrete topics related to special professional interests. Is markedly more proficient at reading materials on a familiar topic. Is able to separate the main ideas and details from lesser ones and uses that distinction to advance understanding. The individual is able to use linguistic context and real-world knowledge to make sensible guesses about unfamiliar material. Has a broad active reading vocabulary. The individual is able to get the gist of main and subsidiary ideas in texts which could only be read thoroughly by persons with much higher proficiencies. Weaknesses include slowness, uncertainty, inability to discern nuance and/or intentionally disguised meaning. (Has been coded R-2+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 26]

Reading 3 (General Professional Proficiency)

Able to read within a normal range of speed and with almost complete comprehension a variety of authentic prose material on unfamiliar subjects. Reading ability is not dependent on subject matter knowledge, although it is not expected that the individual can comprehend thoroughly subject matter which is highly dependent on cultural knowledge or which is outside his/her general experience and not accompanied by explanation. Text-types include news stories similar to wire service reports or international news items in major periodicals, routine correspondence, general reports, and technical material in his/her professional field; all of these may include hypothesis, argumentation, and supported opinions. Misreading rare. Almost always able to interpret material correctly, relate ideas, and 'read between the lines,' (that is, understand the writers' implicit intents in texts of the above types). Can get the gist of more sophisticated texts, but may be unable to detect or understand subtlety and nuance. Rarely has to pause over or reread general vocabulary. However, may experience some difficulty with unusually complex structure and low frequency idioms. (Has been coded R-3 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 30]

Reading 3+ (General Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Can comprehend a variety of styles and forms pertinent to professional needs. Rarely misinterprets such texts or rarely experiences difficulty relating ideas or making inferences. Able to comprehend many sociolinguistic and cultural references. However, may miss some nuances and subtleties. Able to comprehend a considerable range of intentionally complex structures, low frequency idioms, and uncommon connotative intentions; however, accuracy is not complete. The individual is typically able to read with facility, understand, and appreciate contemporary expository, technical, or literary texts which do not rely heavily on slang and unusual idioms. (Has been coded R-3+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 36]

Reading 4 (Advanced Professional Proficiency)

Able to read fluently and accurately all styles and forms of the language pertinent to professional needs. The individual's experience with the written language is extensive enough that he/she is able to relate inferences in the text to real-world knowledge and understand almost all sociolinguistic and cultural references. Able to 'read beyond the lines' (that is, to understand the full ramifications of texts as they are situated in the wider cultural, political, or social environment). Able to read and understand the intent of writers' use of nuance and subtlety. The individual can discern relationships among sophisticated written materials in the context of broad experience. Can follow unpredictable turns of thought readily in, for example, editorial, conjectural, and literary texts in any subject matter area directed to the general reader. Can read essentially all materials in his/her special field, including official and professional documents and correspondence. Recognizes all professionally relevant vocabulary known to the educated non-professional native, although may have some difficulty with slang. Can read reasonably legible handwriting without difficulty. Accuracy is often nearly that of a well-educated native reader. (Has been coded R-4 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 40]

Reading 4+ (Advanced Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Nearly native ability to read and understand extremely difficult or abstract prose, a very wide variety of vocabulary, idioms, colloquialisms, and slang. Strong sensitivity to and understanding of sociolinguistic and cultural references. Little difficulty in reading less than fully legible handwriting. Broad ability to 'read beyond the lines' (that is, to understand the full ramifications of texts as they are situated in the wider cultural, political, or social environment) is nearly that of a well-read or well-educated native reader. Accuracy is close to that of the well-educated native reader, but not equivalent. (Has been coded R-4+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 46]

Reading 5 (Functionally Native Proficiency)

Reading proficiency is functionally equivalent to that of the well-educated native reader. Can read extremely difficult and abstract prose; for example, general legal and technical as well as highly colloquial writings. Able to read literary texts, typically including contemporary avant-garde prose, poetry, and theatrical writing. Can read classical/archaic forms of literature with the same degree of facility as the well-educated, but non-specialist native. Reads and understands a wide variety of vocabulary and idioms, colloquialisms, slang, and pertinent cultural references. With varying degrees of difficulty, can read all kinds of handwritten documents. Accuracy of comprehension is equivalent to that of a well-educated native reader. (Has been coded R-5 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 50]

INTERAGENCY LANGUAGE ROUNDTABLE LANGUAGE SKILL LEVEL DESCRIPTIONS WRITING

Preface

The following proficiency level descriptions characterize written language use. Each of the six 'base levels' (coded 00, 10, 20, 30, 40, and 50) implies Control of any previous' base level's' functions and accuracy. The 'plus level' designation (coded 06, 16, 26, etc.) will be assigned when proficiency substantially exceeds one base skill level and does not fully meet the criteria for the next 'base level.' The 'plus level' descriptions are therefore supplementary to the 'base level' descriptions.

A skill level is assigned to a person through an authorized language examination. Examiners assign a level on a variety of performance criteria exemplified in the descriptive statements. Therefore, the examples given here illustrate, but do not exhaustively describe, either the skills a person may possess or situations in which he/she may function effectively.

Statements describing accuracy refer to typical stages in the development of competence in the most commonly taught languages in formal training programs. In other languages, emerging competence parallels these characterizations, but often with different details.

Unless otherwise specified, the term 'native writer' refers to native writers of a standard dialect.

'Well-educated,' in the context of these proficiency descriptions, does not necessarily imply formal higher education. However, in cultures where formal higher education is common, the language-use abilities of persons who have had such education is considered the standard. That is, such a person meets contemporary expectations for the formal, careful style of the language, as well as a range of less formal varieties of the language.

Writing 0 (No Proficiency)

No functional writing ability. (Has been coded W-0 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 00]

Writing 0+ (Memorized Proficiency)

Writes using memorized material and set expressions. Can produce symbols in a alphabetic or syllabic writing systems or 50 of the most common characters. Can write numbers and dates, own name, nationality, address, etc., such as on a hotel registration form. Otherwise, ability to write is limited to simple lists of common items such as a few short sentences. Spelling and even representation of symbols (letters, syllables, characters) may be incorrect. (Has been coded W-0+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 06]

Writing 1 (Elementary Proficiency)

Has sufficient control of the writing system to meet limited practical needs. Can create by writing statements and questions on topics very familiar to him/her within the scope of his/her very limited language experience. Writing vocabulary is inadequate to express anything but elementary needs; writes in simple sentences making continual errors in spelling, grammar and punctuation but writing can be read and understood by a native reader used to dealing with foreigners attempting to write his/her language. Writing tends to be a loose collection of sentences (or fragments) on a given topic and provides little evidence of conscious organization. While topics which are 'very familiar' and elementary needs vary considerably from individual to individual, any person at this level should be able to write simple phone messages, excuses, notes to service people and simple notes to friends. (800-1000 characters Controlled.) (Has been coded W-1 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 10]

Writing 1+ (Elementary Proficiency Plus)

Sufficient control of writing system to meet most survival needs and limited social demands. Can create sentences and short paragraphs related to most survival needs (food, lodging, transportation, immediate surroundings and situations) and limited social demands. Can express fairly accurate present and future time. Can produce some past verb forms but not always accurately or with correct usage. Can relate personal history, discuss topics such as daily life, preferences and very familiar material. Shows good control of elementary vocabulary and some control of basic syntactic patterns but major errors still occur when expressing more complex thoughts. Dictionary usage may still yield incorrect vocabulary or forms, although the individual can use a dictionary to advantage to express simple ideas. Generally cannot use basic cohesive elements of discourse to advantage (such as relative constructions, object pronouns, connectors, etc.). can take notes in some detail on familiar topics, and respond to personal questions using elementary vocabulary and common structures. Can write simple letters, summaries of biographical data and work experience with fair accuracy. Writing, though faulty, is comprehensible to native speakers used to dealing with foreigners. (Has been coded W-1+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 16]

Writing 2 (Limited Working Proficiency)

Able to write routine social correspondence and prepare documentary materials required for most limited work requirements. Has writing vocabulary sufficient to express himself/herself simply with some circumlocutions. Can write simply about a very limited number of current events or daily situations. Still makes common errors in spelling and punctuation but shows some control of the most common formats and punctuation conventions. Good control of morphology of language (in inflected languages) and of the most frequently used syntactic structures. Elementary constructions are usually handled quite accurately and writing is understandable to a native reader not used to reading the writing of foreigners. Uses a limited number of cohesive devices. (Has been coded W-2 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 20]

Writing 2+ (Limited Working Proficiency, Plus)

Shows ability to write with some precision and in some detail about most common topics. Can write about concrete topics relating to particular interests and special fields of competence. Often shows surprising fluency and ease of expression but under time constraints and pressure language may be inaccurate and/or incomprehensible. Generally strong in either grammar or vocabulary but not in both. Weaknesses or unevenness in one of the foregoing or in spelling result in occasional miscommunication. Areas of weakness range from simple constructions such as plurals, articles, prepositions and negatives to more complex structures such as tense usage, passive constructions, word order and relative clauses. Normally controls general vocabulary with some misuse of everyday vocabulary evident. Shows a limited ability to use circumlocutions. Uses dictionary to advantage to supply unknown words. Can take fairly accurate notes on material presented orally and handle with fair accuracy most social correspondence. Writing is understandable to native speakers not used to dealing with foreigners' attempts to write the language, though style is still obviously foreign. (Has been coded W-2+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 261]

Writing 3 (General Professional Proficiency)

Able to use the language effectively in most formal and informal written exchanges on practical, social and professional topics. Can write reports, summaries, short library research papers on current events, on particular areas of interest or on special fields with reasonable ease. Control of structure, spelling and general vocabulary is adequate to convey his/her message accurately but style may be obviously foreign. Errors virtually never interfere with comprehension and rarely disturb the native reader. Punctuation generally controlled. Employs a full range of structures. Control of grammar good with only sporadic errors in basic structures, occasional errors in the most complex frequent structures and somewhat more frequent errors in low frequency complex structures. Consistent control of compound and complex sentences. Relationship of ideas is consistently clear. (Has been coded W-3 in some non-automated applications.) [Data Code 30]

Writing 3+ (General Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Able to write the language in a few prose styles pertinent to professional/educational needs. Not always able to tailor language to suit audience. Weaknesses may lie in poor control of low frequency complex structures, vocabulary or the ability to express subtleties and nuances. May be able to write on some topics pertinent to professional/educational needs. Organization may suffer due to lack of variety in organizational patterns or in variety of cohesive devices. (Has been coded W-3+ in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 36]

Writing 4 (Advanced Professional Proficiency)

Able to write the language precisely and accurately in a variety of prose styles pertinent to professional/educational needs. Errors of grammar are rare including those in low frequency complex structures. Consistently able to tailor language to suit audience and able to express subtleties and nuances. Expository prose is clearly, consistently and explicitly organized. The writer employs a variety of organizational patterns, uses a wide variety of cohesive devices such as ellipsis and parallelisms and subordinates in a variety of ways. Able to write on all topics normally pertinent to professional/educational needs and on social issues of a general nature. Writing adequate to express all his/her experiences. (Has been coded W-4 in some none stomated applications.) [Data Code 40]

Writing 4 (Advanced Professional Proficiency, Plus)

Able to write the language precisely and accurately in a wide variety of prose styles pertinent to professional/educational needs. May have some ability to edit but not in the full range of styles. Has some flexibility within a style and shows some evidence of a use of stylistic devices. (Has been coded W-4+ in some non-automated applications.) [Data Code 461]

Writing 5 (Functionally Native Proficiency)

Has writing proficiency equal to that of a well-educated native. Without non-native errors of structure, spelling, style or vocabulary can write and edit both formal and informal correspondence, official reports and documents, and professional/educational articles including writing for special purposes which might include legal, technical, educational, literary and colloquial writing. In addition to being clear, explicit and informative, the writing and the ideas are also imaginative. The writer employs a very wide range of stylistic devices. (Has been coded W-5 in some nonautomated applications.) [Data Code 50]

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING DD FORM 2155
REQUIREMENTS FOR RESIDENT FOREIGN LANGUAGE TRAINING

1. General. The initial three year forecast of Resident Foreign Language Training Requirements and each subsequent annual up-date will be submitted on DD Form 2155. There is also a continuation page, DD Form 2155c. The reverse side of both forms has headings for footnote information pertinent to any line item on the obverse side of the page.

2. Instructions.

BLOCK TITLE

FROM Indicate the name of the office actually compiling the Service requirements and preparing this submission. The block should be signed by the person who is responsible for the preparation of the report and who can be contacted for clarification of any item on the report.

THRU Indicate any required approving office in the chain of command between the preparing office and the Commandant, Defense Language Institute, Foreign Language Center. This item should also be signed by the person who is responsible for transmitting the submission report to DLIFLC.

SERVICE/AGENCY STATUS Check appropriate space(s).

1. Active military services must submit their officer and enlisted requirements on separate pages identifying each with an X in the appropriate space of this block.
2. Requirements for Military Department civilian employees will be identified by checking "Civ" under the respective Department. The requesting office must be clearly identified.
3. Reserve Components of the military services must submit their officer and enlisted requirements on separate pages identifying each status with an X in the appropriate space of the block. Requirements for Reserve and National Guard personnel will be on separate reports.

SUBMISSION DATE

1. On the initial submission, indicate 1 October 1978.
2. On the annual up-date submissions indicate 1 October of the calendar year of submission.
3. Reports that amend an annual up-date will use the actual date of the amendment submission.

FISCAL YEAR Identify the year of the report, using the year's number, i.e., 1980, 1981, etc. Then check with an X the name of the year under consideration, i.e., Budget Year, Program Year or Planning Year.

LINE NO. Each line item of this report must be assigned a consecutive line number by the reporting agency.

1. In the case of military Service submissions, the line number sequence should continue from officer through enlisted requirements.
Example: The report submitted for active Navy requirements could include Lines 1 through 52 for officer requirements and lines 53 through 239 for enlisted requirements, giving a total 239 line items for the active Navy requirements.
2. Requirements submitted for Reserve components will follow the same pattern as indicated above.
3. DIA requirements will use the officer and enlisted line number system as for other military requirements.
4. Agencies submitting requirements for civilian employees will number their line items to correspond with the alphabetical order of the language and the subordinate elements of each requirements.
5. Any variation in the element of a given requirement requires a separate line entry.

Example: In the Planning year, Army had 16 officer requirements for basic German, with Training objectives for Intelligence Investigator, and proficiency objectives of 3-level in all four linguistic skills. This submission requires one line entry. An Army Officer requirement for the same language and Training Objective, but for 2-level proficiency objective would require a second line entry.

COLUMN TITLE

a	LANGUAGE	Write out the name of the language and dialect if it is an essential part of the requirement.
b and c	TRAINING OBJECTIVE (See TABLE 2)	These columns express the level and nature of the duty assignment element of the training objective. In column b indicate the numeric code of the level of the assignment, and in column c indicate the alpha code of nature of the assignment.
d, e, f and g	PROFICIENCY LEVEL	These columns express the proficiency objective numerically as level 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 in each of the 4 linguistic skills as described in TABLE 5-1, Joint Service Regulation. If the level descriptions are not appropriate to a requirement, a statement of skill criteria will be included as a footnote (ref instruction for Column n) . Submitting agencies are cautioned to be realistic in itemizing this element of a requirement, stating the required level for each skill, not "S3/R3", for every basic course language requirement. Units in the field that initiate requirements must be advised to give serious attention to this item on their feeder reports.
h	ENTRY MONTH	Use the standard 3-unit alpha abbreviation to indicate the desired month of input to training for this requirement. In scheduling these requirements DLIFLC will give this item close attention, but Services and Agencies are cautioned to recognize that the volume of the total requirements received from all agencies in a particular language might be greater than available facilities to accommodate it at the particular time, thus some compromise of this element might be required. It should also be noted that no classes will be scheduled to enter in the month of December.
i	NUMBER OF REQUIREMENTS	Using a 3-digit number, to include preceding zero's when appropriate, indicate the volume of requirements requested to meet all elements of that language requirement line item.
j	LOCALE OF TRAINING	This item needs to be completed only when it is desired that the training be accomplished at a facility other than DLIFLC, Presidio of Monterey, California. Training to be conducted at the Foreign Service Institute of State Dept for DIA requirements should indicate the ALPHA "F". Should other training facilities be established an alpha code will be designated. (As in the past, this locale code will be incorporated into the class number) .
k, l and m	COURSE: (Type Standard language Code and course length in weeks)	The descriptive information for this element of a requirement can usually be found in DLI Pamphlet 350-8, Catalog of DLI Resident Foreign Language Courses. If the requirement is for a new language or a new course not listed in the Catalog, include the data required for columns k and l; omit the training weeks in column m, but mark column n for a footnote reference. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) Column k, use a two digit numerical code to indicate the course type (See TABLE 3). (2) Column l, use the two digit alpha code of the government-wide list of language abbreviations (See DOD Manual 5000.12M). (3) Column m, use the two digit numerical code, with preceding zero's if appropriate, to indicate the stated length (training weeks) of the desired course as indicated in the DLIFLC Catalog of Resident courses.
n	FOOTNOTE REFERENCE	Assign a chronological sequence number in this column as a footnote reference for the line entry that has any variation from the normal, warrants discussion or clarification. Space has been specifically arranged on the reverse side of each page of the submission form for the Service/Agency to discuss, describe or justify any unique element of a requirement.
o	RESERVED (For DLIFLC use)	Insertion of Block C information into Computer's Scheduling file.
p	RESERVED (For DLIFLC Sequence Code No.)	A numerical code assigned by DLIFLC to provide a reference indicator to each requirement received from all Services/Agencies for a given year's requirements. This sequence number will identify to the Service the placement of each requirement on the Budget Year's schedule.
q	RESERVED	Blank space left for expansion purposes.
