Driver's License Legislation Passed in Puerto Rico

Puerto Rican Driver's License Legislation (DLL) was signed by Governor Luis G. Fortuño on December 12, 2011. Puerto Rico was the last of Region II's 15 States and U.S. Territories to implement Driver's License Legislation.

Senator Lucy Arce introduced this legislation, P S2136, in the Puerto Rico's Senate in May, 2011; it was assigned to the Urbanism and Infrastructure Commission Committee. A hearing was scheduled, in which supporters of this legislation spoke about the importance of DLL. State Director Walter Perales Reyes, Detachment Commander LTC Mario Morales, as well as other supporters, were instrumental in this effort. The Urbanism and Infrastructure Commission Committee approved the legislation and sent it to the Senate floor to be voted upon. Once approved by a vote of 19-05 the legislation was sent to Puerto Rico's House of Representatives. From there it was assigned to the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee. The legislation was approved by a vote of 45-05 and sent back to the Senate with revisions and amendments. The Senate approved the changes, and it was signed by the President of the Senate and the President of the House. Finally, the legislation was then sent to the Governor for signature.

Director Romo and Region Director Scragg would like to give special thanks to State Director Walter Perales Reyes for his time, effort and hard work in this matter. Though the time-line for the passage of this legislation may seem short, State Director Perales Reyes has been working on this effort for many years. His perseverance in the passage of this legislation is to be commended.

This important law gives young men the opportunity to take advantage of federal benefits that are available for job training and financial aid for education. Region II is looking forward to the improvement of Puerto Rico's registration compliance rates from DLL in the near future. ■

Selective Service: What You Need To Know

(NAPSA)—Getting the facts may help young men understand why it is so important that they register with Selective Service System.

Who Needs To Register?
All male U.S. citizens must register when they turn 18, as do male noncitizens who take up residency in the U.S. before their 26th birthday. That includes illegal aliens, legal permanent residents and refugees.

The Selective Service does not collect any information that would indicate a person's citizenship or immigration status.

Noncitizens who are in the U.S. on student or visitor visas, and men who are part of a diplomatic or trade mission and their families, are not required to register. Dual nationals, however, are required to register.

Although dual nationals are considered citizens of the U.S. and another country, they are also required to register, regardless of where they live.

Why Register?
The penalties for not registering can be very serious. A man who fails to register may, if prosecuted and convicted, face a fine of up to $250,000 and/or a prison term of up to five years.

Not registering can also affect your ability to go to school, become a citizen and get a job.

Failing to register can mean:

A young man takes the oath that will make him a U.S. citizen.

- You will not qualify for federal student loans or grant programs, including Pell Grants, College Work-Study, Guaranteed Student/PLUS Loans and National Direct Student Loans.

- You cannot apply for citizenship if you arrived in the U.S. before your 26th birthday.

- You may not be able to get a federal job-training act called the Workforce Investment Act.

- You are not eligible for jobs in the executive branch of the federal government and the U.S. Postal Service.

- You may not be able to get a driver's license, as some states require proof of registration.

College Planning Financing Your Future

(NAPSA)—For many people, the only thing harder than getting into college is paying for it. Three tips can help.

Think ahead—As early as their sophomore year, students should begin collecting and organizing applications, recommendations, test scores, essays and transcripts. Begin applying by junior year to take advantage of scholarships geared toward younger students. Create a calendar of application deadlines.

Some students can get scholarship money from the government.

Think categorically—Certain college scholarships depend on ethnic, religious or professional affiliations.

Think federally—Fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form. It's online at www.fafsa.ed.gov or call (800) 4-FED-AID, and it's the only way to apply for college grants, scholarship money and loans issued through the U.S. government. Just remember, male students over 18 must register with Selective Service to qualify for federal student loans or grant programs, including Pell Grants, College Work Study, Guaranteed Student/PLUS Loans and National Direct Student Loans.

Registration forms are available at your local post office and online at www.sss.gov.

3) Failing to register makes a person ineligible for: a) federal student loans, b) citizenship, c) federal job training programs or d) all of the above.

Answer: d) All of the above. In some states, failing to register can also make a person ineligible for a driver's license.

Donated Air Time Worth $5,000,000

Selective Service System Public and Intergovernmental Affairs staff has created radio Public Service Announcements (PSAs) to remind young men and their influencers that men ages 18-25 must register with Selective Service. The PSAs are an integral part of the agency's 2012 media mix. The "What Young Men Need to Hear When They Turn 18" CD package has fourteen PSAs and several "announcer" read spots, some of which are translated into Spanish.

There are different styles of PSAs and varied lengths (15, 30, 60 second versions) in the CD package produced for different station audiences – contemporary, rock, news/talk, country and western, etc. They have to appeal to a particular station's style format and listener preference or they'll never be selected for air time.

Prior to the radio announcements being produced, PIA conducted focus group testing on the radio scripts inviting feedback and comments from a representation of our target audience. Participants in the focus groups were 18 and 19 year old young men from different states. Ultimately, the final PSA selections represent their best choices.

The radio PSAs package was sent to 5,000 stations and this summer they will be distributed to another 7,000 stations. Almost every radio station in the U.S. will receive the PSAs.

Historically, the PSAs average over five million dollars ($5,000,000) worth of donated air time annually with almost 100,000 announcement airings.

If you would like a copy of the radio package or know someone who might be interested in playing our materials, please contact us at: Information@sss.gov.

Albert Gonzales Appointed to National Appeal Board

President Barack Obama appointed Mr. Albert Gonzales to the Selective Service National Appeal Board on November 28, 2011. Mr. Gonzales is the National Commander of the American GI Forum (AGIF), the largest federally chartered Hispanic Veterans organization in the United States with chapters in 40 states and Puerto Rico. Prior to being elected as AGIF National Commander, he served the organization in many capacities from local, state, and national elected positions. Mr. Gonzales is active in community service. He is the coordinator of the food pantry at his church and a member of the Knights of Columbus. Mr. Gonzales serves on several boards, including the Pikes Peak Educational Foundation, the Westside CARES board, Habitat for Humanity, and the Black/Latino Forum. Additionally, as the AGIF National Commander he serves on the Board of Directors for the Hispanic Association on Corporate Responsibility.

Mr. Gonzales believes that knowledge is power. In an editorial for the Winter 2012 issue of Latino Magazine, he explains that "For young Latino men especially, knowledge of the Federal requirement to register with Selective Service is the power to realize dreams and goals of success." He stresses that young men may be eligible for student loans, federal jobs, and citizenship when they fulfill their legal obligation to register. Mr. Gonzales said "Registration with Selective Service is the door to full participation in the greatest nation on earth." ■

ADELANTE

Unlocking the Door

By ALBERT GONZALES

Knowledge is power. For young Latino men especially, knowledge of the Federal requirement to register with Selective Service is the power to realize dreams and goals of success.

On the other hand, lack of knowledge can cripple a young man. He should know, for example, that many important benefits and privileges are conditioned to registering with Selective Service. They include student loans, federal jobs, and citizenship. I think there are three reasons too many young Latino men are losing those benefits and privileges.

The first reason, as I said, is not knowing about the requirement. The second reason is knowing about the requirement but not understanding it. It's the unfounded fear that registration will lead to military service or deportation. The third reason is the prospect of taking one's claim for deferment or exemption before an all-Anglo draft board. That shouldn't make a difference, but in the real world perceptions are important.

I appreciate this chance to set the record straight. We recently celebrated Columbus Day, an annual reminder of the Hispanic discovery of this continent. Since then, Hispanic men and women have enriched the cultural heritage of this nation and served with honor and distinction in the Armed Forces. As the National Commander of the American GI Forum, I have good reason to know how bravely and faithfully Hispanic veterans have served this nation. The young Latino man has every reason to love his country. Registration with Selective Service is another way to show it. It's the last link between the Armed Forces and the society they protect.

Three of the last four directors of Selective Service, including my good friend and the current incumbent, Lawrence G. Romo, are Hispanic. That will tell readers of this magazine how important Latino outreach is to Selective Service.

But first, the young Latino man needs to know that if he is living in this country he has to register, citizen or not. He needs to know that he should register within 30 days of his 18th birthday, and certainly before his 26th birthday, after which it's too late.

High school is where most young men find out about the registration requirement. But what if the Latino immigrant went to high school in his original country and came here at the age of 20? How else would he learn about the law? It isn't exactly a common topic of talk on the street. And even if it were, what if his English skills were still poor? He probably wouldn't understand Selective Service posters if he saw them, or understand Selective Service radio spots if he heard them.

And then there are several fatal misperceptions. Registration does not mean military service. Military service in the United States has been 100 percent voluntary since 1973. Registration provides a data base of names in case of a future dire emergency. It's an insurance policy against being caught unprepared for a crisis. Nothing more, nothing less.

Worse yet is the fear that registration will attract the attention of the U.S. Department of Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS, formerly INS), and open the door to deportation. A common reaction is to keep a low profile and register for nothing. Selective Service does not share its data with immigration officials. In fact, it couldn't even if it wanted to. Registration requires the basic information. Name, date of birth, current address. It's even possible to register without a Social Security Number, although the registrant should add that to his file once he receives it. There is nothing on any Selective Service form which identifies the registrant's residency status.

Selective Service concentrates on its mission to prepare for a future draft, however unlikely that possibility is today. Having learned its lessons from the Vietnam War era, it knows that if Congress ever authorizes a draft in the future, it will have to be a fair and equitable draft, and to be perceived as such by the general population. That's especially true for the Latino population, which is now the most important minority in the U.S. Part of that fairness and equity would deal with tightening deferments and making every young man equally at risk of induction.

Who would decide who gets deferments and exemptions? Local boards. The claimant for a deferment or exemption would have no confidence in the process unless he felt his case were decided by his neighbors and peers. That's why the local boards of Selective Service reflect the communities they serve. Common sense and fairness dictate that local boards in, say, San Antonio, El Paso, or Miami should be proportionately Latino. And yes, women bring their own fresh and unique perspective. There's a role for women on local boards, too. I write to appeal to influential Latinos everywhere. Find out if there is a vacancy on your local board. Apply yourself, and ask civic-minded friends to apply. You'll find the information link (<http://www.sss.gov/BM.htm>) on the Selective Service web site.

Registration is quick, it's easy, and it's the law. It's such a small step. Keys and keyholes are small, too, but they unlock doors. Registration with Selective Service is the door to full participation in the greatest nation on earth.

Albert Gonzales is the National Commander of the American GI Forum.

Recruiting Board Members

It's easier than ever to recruit Board Members with the new DVD video, "People Like Me". Just gather some of your friends at church, a club meeting, a work luncheon, or a speaker's bureau program, and drop the DVD into the machine. By the end of the DVD, your audience will have a much better idea of who a board member is, what they do, and how to join. The Public & Intergovernmental Affairs Directorate (PIA) knows lot of credible selling is required on your part, but PIA hopes these materials help your recruiting efforts.

Board Member Recruiting Video Cover

"People Like Me," features a mix of real Board Members who provide their thoughts and emphatic support for the program. Rather than scripts, 27 Board Members from the District of Columbia, Maryland, North Carolina, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia speak their own words. "That's what makes it so credible," comments Selective Service System Director Lawrence Romo.

Bob Delosso

The "high definition" video is designed in three formats:

- 2 minute version, for kiosk, TV and other visual advertising opportunities
- 10 minute version for speaker opportunities
- 35 minute continuous loop version for exhibits (included in the package is a SSS high school video)

Tune in and listen to comments about the important role, the service opportunities, and the specialized training of a Board Member. You can find the videos on SSS web site, www.sss.gov . Go to the Board Member Info tab on the left side of the web page or <http://media.sss.gov/media/Video.aspx>

Stockings For Soldiers

Delaware Local Board member Mrs. Judy Travis' son, Scott, a 2001 graduate of West Point, was deployed to Iraq in 2003 - 2004. After his safe return, Mrs. Travis realized that other parents needed to know that their children were not forgotten by the American people, so she started a small neighborhood project, "Stockings for Soldiers" to send our troops some smiles, hugs and goodies for the Christmas holiday. What started as a small endeavor, with a handful of volunteers, soon grew with the help of hundreds of volunteers and has become an annual holiday event in Delaware.

This past holiday season, over 500 volunteers sent 1,500 boxes packed with 10,140 homemade, personalized Christmas Stockings that were filled with over 45,000 pounds of Christmas goodies. Volunteers also made 2,500 polar fleece blankets and over 1,000 knitted hats for our brave and courageous troops. Included in these figures were several special boxes of stockings for 70 children. These stockings were delivered by a U.S. military chaplain to the children of Afghanistan as a gift from the children of America. In addition, several big boxes of dog biscuits were sent for a K 9 unit. Additionally, over 10,000 personal greeting cards and several hundred letters of appreciation from children from many, many schools were mailed to our deployed troops.

This amazing local initiative, humanitarian rather than political or religious, would not have been possible had it not been for the charitable actions of volunteers from all over America. Our sincere thanks to Mrs. Travis and all of the wonderful volunteers who made a difference in the lives of our troops.

If you would like to learn more about Stockings for Soldiers, please contact the charity by phone: (302) 475-2526 or online at:

CW5 Mark Kelsey and the Snowball Express

CW5 Mark Kelsey, Texas State Resource Volunteer and former Region II RFO, served on the Board of Directors as the Volunteer Coordinator for this year's Snowball Express, an organization that helps "create hope and new memories for the children between the ages of 5 and 18 of fallen military heroes who have died while serving our country since 9/11". This year approximately 1,400 volunteers participated in the event. When asked about scheduled activities, CW5 Kelsey stated "On our last night after the Terry Fator concert, we all assembled in front of the Winspear Opera House and we had fireworks. Then Santa rappelled down the front of an 11-story office building. Then Rocketman, dressed as Santa, flew all round the square to the delight of all who witnessed these three almost magical events. What a night!"
